Checklists can help you evaluate the nursing homes that you call or visit. Use a new checklist for each home you call or visit. Then, compare the scores. This will help you select a nursing home that is a good choice for you or your relative.

Nursing Home Name: _____

Date Visited: _____

Address: _____

I. Basic Information

1. Is the facility Medicare certified?: _____(yes) _____(no)
2. Is the facility Medicaid certified?: _____(yes) _____(no)
3. Is this a skilled nursing facility?: _____(yes) _____(no)
4. Is the facility accepting new patients?: _____(yes) _____(no)
5. Is there a waiting period for admission?: _____(yes) _____(no)
6. Is a skilled bed available to you?: _____(yes) _____(no)

Useful Tips

- Generally, skilled nursing care is available only for a short period of time after a hospitalization. Custodial care is for a much longer period of time. If a facility offers both types of care, learn if residents may transfer between levels of care within the nursing home without having to move from their old room or from the nursing home.
- Nursing homes that only take Medicaid residents might offer longer term but less intensive levels of care. Nursing Homes that don't accept Medicaid payment may make a resident move when Medicare or the resident's own money runs out.
- An occupancy rate is the total number of residents currently living in a nursing home divided by the home's total number of beds. Occupancy rates vary by area, depending on the overall number of available nursing home beds.

I. Nursing Home Information:

1. Is the home and the current administrator licensed?: ____ (yes) ____ (no)
2. Does the home conduct background checks on all staff?: ____ (yes) ____ (no)
3. Does the home have special services units?: ____ (yes) ____ (no)
4. Does the home have abuse prevention training?: ____ (yes) ____ (no)

Useful Tips

- LICENSURE: The nursing home and its administrator should be licensed by the State to operate.
- BACKGROUND CHECKS: Do the nursing home's procedures to screen potential employees for a history of abuse meet your State's requirements? Your State's Ombudsman program might be able to help you with this information.
- SPECIAL SERVICES: Some nursing homes have special service units like rehabilitation, Alzheimer's, and hospice. Learn if there are separate waiting periods or facility guidelines for when residents would be moved on or off the special unit.
- STAFF TRAINING: Do the nursing home's training programs educate employees about how to recognize resident abuse and neglect, how to deal with aggressive or difficult residents, and how to deal with the stress of caring for so many needs? Are there clear procedures to identify events or trends that might lead to abuse and neglect, and on how to investigate, report, and resolve your complaints?
- LOSS PREVENTION: Are there policies or procedures to safeguard resident possessions?

For Sections III through VI, give the nursing home a grade from one to five. One is worst, five is best.

If you have questions or concerns about the information on a nursing home, you should discuss them during your visit. This section contains useful tips and questions that you may want to ask the nursing home staff, family members and residents of the nursing home during your visit.

Nursing Home Compare Information on Results of Nursing Home Inspections

- Bring a copy of the Nursing Home Compare inspection results for the nursing home. Ask whether the deficiencies have been corrected.

Nursing Home Compare Information on Resident and Nursing Home Characteristics

1. For the Measure: Residents with Physical Restraints

- Does it appear that there is sufficient staff to assist residents who need help in moving or getting in and out of chairs and bed?

Nursing Home Compare Information on Nursing Staff

Caring, competent nursing staff who respect each resident and family member are very important in assuring that residents get needed care and enjoy the best possible quality of life. Adequate nursing staff is needed to assess resident needs, plan and give them care, and help them with eating, bathing and other activities. Some residents (e.g., those who are more dependent in eating or who are bedfast) need more help than other residents depending on their conditions.

The combinations of registered nurses (RNs), licensed practical and vocational nurses (LPNs/LVNs), and certified nursing assistants (CNAs) that nursing homes may have vary depending on the type of care that residents need and the number of residents in the nursing home.

- Look at your responses to Questions 2 and 5 in section III above and Questions 4, 5, and 10 in section IV above. Also look at your responses to Questions 2 and 7 in section V above.
- Are nursing staff members courteous and friendly to residents and to other staff?
- Do nursing staff respond timely to residents calls for assistance such as help getting in and out of bed, dressing and going to the bathroom?
- Observe meal times. Do all residents who need assistance with eating get help? Do staff give each resident enough time to chew food thoroughly and complete the meal?
- Which nursing staff members are involved in planning the residents individual care? (Are they the same ones who give the care to residents?)
- Ask questions about staff turnover. Is there frequent turnover among certified nursing assistants (CNAs)? What about nurses and supervisors, including the Director of Nursing and the Administrator? If staff changes frequently, ask why.
- While the number of nursing staff is important to good care, also consider other factors, such as education and training. How many registered nurses (RNs) are on the staff, and how many available on each shift? What kind of training do certified nursing assistants (CNAs) receive? How does the nursing home ensure that all staff receive continuing education and keep their knowledge and skills up-to-date?
